"A leader is one who knows the way, goes the way, and shows the way." — John C Maxwell

Methodology

Weixi uses a range of fun and informal participatory approaches, backed by knowledge and clear intent, to trigger learning and reflection about the effectiveness of different leadership styles.

Core content

- Using the Visual Explorer™ tool, generate discussion about the key success factors of effective leadership
- Gain awareness of themselves and how others see them
- Recognise the skills needed to lead an effective team
- Learn to use appropriate words in different context

Objectives

Enhance industry-readiness of School of Computing graduates through the development of soft skills, and impart practical knowledge that are applicable at the workplace.

---

About the Facilitator

Tan Weixi is a Certified Professional Trainer (IPMA, UK), and Project Management Professional (PMI, USA), who designs and facilitates programs in the areas of performance management, creativity, problem solving, team-building, leadership, and communications.

Weixi has prior experience as an Operational and Requirements Manager managing Asia Pacific operations, specifically, portfolio management and contract negotiations for a world leader in the development, manufacture and delivery of training and simulation turnkey projects for the military and civil markets.

His current career as a professional trainer and management consultant has provided him with opportunities to develop and deliver customised training workshops for participants from various organisations, including IDA, Southeast CDC, EASB, Zuelig Pharmaceutical, Emerson Process Management, Teck Wah Logistics, SMRT, Ministry of Defence, Caterpillar, Cathay Interior and StarHub, among others.

Academically, Wei Xi holds a Bachelor in Business Administration degree from the National University of Singapore, as well as a Masters of Organisational Leadership conferred by Monash University.