WHAT I LIKE / DISLIKE ABOUT THE MODULE

What I liked about the module:

Comments
Content taught was contextualized, practical and made it easy to apply in real life. It is also easy to understand what we have been doing wrong all along. I like everything about this module other than the workload.
Continuous learning which helps with solidifying the concepts
Good general life advice Plenty of guest speakers
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>– Sharing of different perspectives with respect to leadership and management.</li><li>– Valuable insights from guest lecturers.</li><li>– Follow up (if criteria is met) coaching in the future should one take up any leadership stints.</li></ul>
reflections
It was interactive and was different from a technical module
Gave me concrete steps to improve myself and become a better person. How to coach, reflection were all really useful.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>* skills this module teaches (self-awareness, perspective taking, motivation, assessing your own values, conflict management) are actually useful</li><li>* Good at taking abstract concepts and making them concrete</li><li>* Tutorials</li><li>* Guest speakers</li><li>* Getting comments on our own reflections + Being pushed to reflect</li><li>* Forgiving</li><li>* Focus on growth and learning — challenged assumptions &amp; thoughts</li></ul>
The module covers leadership quite thoroughly.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>– Not a typical technical module</li><li>– Forces you to reflect</li><li>– Discussions that force you out of your comfort zone</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>– You learn about being more self-aware, being able to regulate yourself better</li><li>– You learn how to relate to and engage with others around you better (your friends, peers, family, etc.)</li><li>– You get to listen to lots of cool speakers who have lots of cool stories!</li><li>– You get to have some respite from intense brainpower work from all your other modules by doing some mindful reflection</li><li>– Even if you don't end up taking up leadership roles, you still end up becoming a better person. :)</li></ul>
Got to reflect on myself and improve.

What I did not like about the module:

Comments
Heavy workload and spending lots of time on this module. Prof insists that the workload is light and I have been experiencing cognitive dissonance for many weeks due to this.
Workload was heavy, a lot of writing and reading (but I think it was useful) Deadlines were quite tight
A lot of writing High workload
High workload, but agree that it's hard to cut down on workload any further.
reflections
nil
* I think the workload was fair but I struggled to get things in on time (mitigated by only mild late-work penalties) * Hoped to spend more time talking to / working with peers in the module. Warm environment, but still a bit limited by not meeting people in person I suspect.
Initial workload for the module was extremely high but overtime it became bearable and managable.
– Got repetitive sometimes
Work was quite intense at some points. Need some time to sit down and focus on reflecting, which became harder as the semester went on.
